HISTORY OF OTSEGO COUNTY

Otsego County traces its beginning to 1840 when the Michigan Legislature set off four townships as Okkuddo County. It was later renamed Otsego meaning "clear water" on March 8, 1843. Five more townships were added later.

The first people moved into Otsego County in 1868, for the purpose of lumbering, but were unsuccessful and it wasn't until 1869 that lumbering really got going. About 1872, Otsego Lake Village was started; the first people moved into the Gaylord area in 1873-1874 and Gaylord was incorporated as a village in 1881.

Other towns in Otsego County grew as the lumbering and farming advanced; most of the towns have now disappeared as could be expected when the lumber died out. Such towns as Quick, Sallings, Berryville, Logan and so forth are only names on old maps today. The remaining towns are Gaylord, Johannesburg, Elmira, Vanderbilt, Waters and Otsego Lake Village.

The Great White Pine lured people into early Otsego County; it was known as Cork Pine; the finest of the white pines was found in great number in the Otsego Lake area and was greatly sought after by the loggers. The only large remaining stand today is found in Hartwick Pines State Park.

Otsego County was also known for its fine hardwood and a great deal of her later industry was centered on this wood. Such industries as the Gaylord Last Block Works, which made ten-pins and last blocks, was the largest of its kind in the world at that time.

In lumbering today, we only have a few mills left in the county and not much lumbering is done; some hardwood is still cut and also a little pine. Some people do tap maple trees in the spring for maple syrup (these stands of maple are called sugarbushes). Christmas tree plantations are a new business in the area as well.

Other early industries in the area were wagon and sleigh making; at one time a car was manufactured in Gaylord, known as the "Gaylord 30". This industry coupled with the industries that rose out of the lumbering and farming, comprise much of Gaylord's early industry.

Today, the tourist industry is one of the highest ranking, Otsego County is well known as a popular four-seasons vacation spot, attracting thousands to the area for golfing, swimming, boating, skiing, snowmobiling and in general the opportunity to experience Northern Michigan at its finest. Two campgrounds and a state park are found in our county as well.

Hunting and fishing is in abundance which includes deer, bear, grouse, rabbits and other small game; also our county boasts the only elk herd in Michigan. Further information can be obtained from the Michigan Department of Natural Resources.
